Hey John

We are doing casual play from 4-5 then 5 we will start the TCG challenge where they will have set opponents and need to fill out deck lists for team checks

It will need to be a structured format and I'll be there early to help get it set the way we need it to be done. Is there a printer available or will I need to bring one?

Thanks

Greg

In terms of prize packs we will need to figure out a better way to hand them out for specific things as it seems like we have ran out early quite often and we will need them for challenges (monthly) and cups (quarterly) for up to three separate games as well as TCG and VG having different age divisions if that becomes a thing.

Casual play might have to pull back on prize packs a bit to provide for those and whatever is left we can look at for casual play

Hi Greg,

Typically, we run it from 6-9 pm. There is a printer available, depending on what you need to print. We haven't received any prize packs in over two months, and now we are in the new quarter. While I would hope people should up for 5 PM, I would be prepared for a 6pm start, Because it is new for a league challenge there will be kinks to work out the first time or two.

So I assume you are doing the challenge tomorrow then?

John

Yes I am running the TCG challenge today and 6pm start is fine. I'll still aim to be there a bit before 5 regardless to make sure I am good on my end and if anyone looking on the website shows up for 5.

How many prize packs total did we get last shipment and how many packs were being given out at each casual play?

I think I sent a sheet along but I would need that printed and then we would need to print whatever TOM prints out in terms of standings and pairings for each round I have a usb adapter I can bring for my Mac
